INTRODUCTION

We work with a limited number of couples each year, creating wedding stationery guided by taste rather than trend.

Each commission is approached as a complete visual language - shaped through materials, process and judgement.

Every project begins with conversation - not templates. From there, ideas are refined through sampling, material exploration and careful decision-making, until the final suite feels entirely resolved.

Decisions made with confidence, not compromise

Commissions typically include invitation suites, on-the-day paper goods and bespoke details, developed as a cohesive whole.

We guide each couple through the process with clarity and confidence, ensuring every decision feels considered rather than overwhelming. Whether understated or expressive, every detail is intentional

If you're planning a wedding where stationery is treated with the same care as every other decision, we'd love to hear more...
